Anthony Chentis, owner and operator of Anthony's 511, wanted to help a soldier stationed overseas who didn't have any contacts here in the United States. He found a soldier at www.anysoldier.com and began packing boxes.

"The first soldier I found happened to be a woman and she said the women over there needed girly things like hair ties, shampoo, anti-friz gel and other items," Chentis said. "I told her she was speaking to the right person."

Chentis gathered up as many items as he could and soon his clients began helping. He had so many items to send over that he decided to sponsor three other soldiers. Now he is sending gift boxes to three women and one man serving in Afghanistan, Iraq, Kuwait and Serbia.

"It doesn't matter if your a Republican or Democrat, if you support the war or don't," Chentis said. "Everyone wants to do something for our soldiers."

Wanting to help a soldier really began when Chentis' friends' brother Matthew Zindars passed away in July while serving the Marines in Iraq.

"With Matthew dying it really brought everything into perspective," Chentis said. "I just want them all to come home and for them to know that people here are thinking of them."

To donate items to send to one of the four soldiers sponsored by Chentis drop off items at the hair salon at Anthony's 511, 511 E. Main St., Watertown. With Christmas a month away Chentis hopes to send over Christmas related items. For more information, call 261-6678.
